

Discover the Palmetto Collective

The Palmetto Collective is a new group of college juniors and seniors from campuses across South Carolina who are passionate about being missional leaders for the gospel. It's a unique experience where devoted followers of Jesus are equipped for a lifetime of fruitful mission and ministry as a leader for Jesus in any realm of society. Palmetto Collective students discover God's mission in the world and in their lives through studying God's word together, sharing with ministry mentors, participating in leadership retreats, and serving in mission opportunities around the world during school breaks, summers and even two years after college.

Who can be a part of the Palmetto Collective?

The ideal Palmetto Collective candidate is a rising college-level junior who has been transformed by the gospel, is significantly involved in their local church and has a deep desire to grow in Christlikeness. They should have a passion to saturate others with the gospel - beginning locally and extending to the ends of the earth. It's for those with a call to full-time ministry or international missions as well as those who want to use a secular profession to advance the gospel. In other words, the Palmetto Collective is for students who are passionate about Jesus and want to be missional leaders wherever God leads them.

How does the Palmetto Collective work?

- Students enter into a discipleship cohort, working on monthly studies and projects developed by top-level church leaders in SC. PC students will be connected with a local mentor who will help them process what they are learning and experiencing with one-on-one discipleship meetings. Once a month, the cohort will meet virtually and/or in person to discuss that month's focus and to hear from national and international leaders. Over-night retreats are planned to connect with other students who are also passionate about pursuing Christ and making Him famous around the world.
- During Christmas break, the Palmetto Collective will dive into a mission intensive (likely in a diverse and urban context) to deepen learning and engagement with the missionary task. Transportation, lodging and meals are provided for this experience.
- During the summer break between their junior and senior years, students will be encouraged to serve in Baptist ministry and mission settings. For those raising money to serve during the summer, Palmetto Collective grants will be available to help with some of the costs of that service.
- After graduation, students will receive up to $5,000 for two years of mission engagement after college – either through IMB or NAMB's Journeyman program or a Go2 experience in North America (typically serving with a church planting team in a strategic city).

Questions?

1.803.227.6026

katiebennett@scbaptist.org

To Apply:

www.palmettocollective.org

palmetto
collective

South Carolina Baptist Convention

This SCBC resource is made possible through the Cooperative Program giving of South Carolina Baptist churches.